Misrepresentation without Fraud A contract may be invalidated if it was based on any innocent misrepresentation pertaining to a material matter on which one party justifiably relied. An illiterate person is capable of giving real consent to a contract; the person has a duty to ask someone to read the contract to him or her and to explain it, if necessary. Under a carrier liability contract, the carrier can assume the risk for loss, damage or delay of goods.

LegalMatch

Because a promise to give a gift is freely made by the promisor, who is not subject to any legal duty to do so, the promise is not enforceable unless there is.

De Gruyter

An accord is an agreement to accept some performance other than that which was previously owed under a prior contract. One set involves rules for everyone, and the other set involves rules for merchants. Where recovery is permitted for substantial performance, it is offset by damages for injuries caused by failure to render complete performance.

Contracts for the Sale of Goods legal definition of Contracts for the Sale of Goods

Promises impose several liability only when promisors singly promise to pay or to act.
