Star catalogue

Where possible, these are based on the ACRS and PPM data, with proper motion incorporated indicated by 'C' in the Notes parameter for such an entry. At present double stars are identified and measured primarily through general stellar surveys such as the United States Naval Observatory's astrometric surveys and space missions such as , and the recently launched or as incidental discoveries in research directed to other topics. The positions that are given represent the WDS authors' best estimates of these values.

The component of the proper motion of the secondary in seconds of arc per 1000 years or milliarcseconds per year , in right ascension reduced to great circle, except if the Notes parameter contains a 'P', in which case the unit is seconds of arc per 100 years. It is expected that the next significant improvement in this area will be when UCAC data is cross-referenced with the WDS.
