Canadian

Macdonald 1815-1891 officially adopted an economic development program known as the National Policy. What Tariffs are sums of money collected by a nation on all imported goods.

U.S. Reciprocity and Civil Documents by Country

In addition, the increase in tariffs — 75 percent of revenues came from this one source — fattened the federal treasury and helped finance the building of the transcontinental railway. Montreal merchants, who dominated Canadian business interests, threatened to push for annexation to the U. The railway also represented a means to open up the West to settlement.

U.S. Reciprocity and Civil Documents by Country

It also proved a favourite topic of political cartoonists, who depicted the policy as a white elephant, while representing the United States, a major player, as Uncle Sam, draped in the American flag. The purpose of the policy was to provide support for emerging Canadian industry and promote development of the domestic market by imposing protectionist tariffs.

Past Perfect: The Politically Incorrect in Cartoons!

The most energetic promoter was Israel D. When This cartoon from 1876 was published three years before the adoption of the National Policy in March 1879. The treaty complemented the earlier movement toward free trade and stimulated the export of commodities sold primarily to the U.

Past Perfect: The Politically Incorrect in Cartoons!

Cet article, grâce à des données du recensement, des résultats électoraux et des techniques économétriques, teste les interprétations des partis politiques ainsi que les interprétations économiques et sociologiques du revirement électoral de 1908-1911. Texas is reciprocal with 32 states! It covers the costs associated with processing a U.

The Canadian

The bottom line: the more licenses you have, the better.

The Canadian

Where The National Policy was very popular in Ontario and Quebec, where numerous industries benefited directly from it.
