Sermon: Funeral Sermon for a Sudden, Unexpected Death

The labelling was not fair or accurate in either its ancient or its modern forms—the original Donatists believed they were the true church rather than a separatist sect, while London Baptists of the 1640s bore little relationship to Munster radicals, but the process was far from random or incoherent. The events in Yorkshire which led to the Eestoration are fully described in the ' Iter Boreale ' of Brian Fairfax, the manuscript of which is preserved at Leeds Castle.
