Pathophysiology of Neurological Conditions & Disorders

Evoked potentials are also used to monitor brain activity among coma patients, and confirm brain death. If these are not properly maintained, they can pose a serious safety hazard: the dangers of electricity should not be underestimated. The muscle sample may be removed either surgically, through a slit made in the skin, or by needle biopsy, in which a thin hollow needle is inserted through the skin and into the muscle.

Neurotransmitters are released at the dendrite. Help the client fill out his menu.

Neurological Diagnostic Tests and Procedures Fact Sheet

People with red styles tend to be straightforward, assertive, logical, personable, authoritative, friendly, direct, and resourceful, and usually thrive in a self-structured, high-pressured, hierarchical, production-oriented, competitive environment. Affected muscles are spastic, rather than flaccid. Because a cervical spine injury can cause respiratory distress, the nurse should take immediate action to maintain a patent airway and provide adequate oxygenation.

Do I Have Anxiety? 1 Minute Anxiety Quiz

Interestingly this is a very under reported aspect of assessment and yet quite a significant one if you are considering the two aspects of assessment - alertness or rousability and awareness.

How will I die?

Testing for certain disorders requires performing an EEG during sleep, which takes at least 3 hours.
