Vision William Concerning Piers Plowman, First Edition

Some put them to plow · and played little enough, At setting and sowing · they sweated right hard And won that which wasters · by gluttony destroy. The logic here is that medieval people prayed to Mary as an intercessor: a go-between who stood between the worshiper and Jesus or God.

At the time of writing the B-text of Do-wel, he was forty-five years of age, and he was therefore born about a. The extent to which the technique skillfully formulates and questions each character power relation in the text, forcing the reader to engage on ever more multi-facetious levels, only serves to add to the amazement that, in the hundreds of years since this work was written, we have neither surpassed it, nor truly recognised its brilliance. Rigg and Charlotte Brewer hypothesized the existence of a Z-text predecessor to A which contains elements of both A and C.
