In 1921 he proceeded to Paris, studying at the Academie de la Grande Chaumiere and exhibiting in 1925 at the Salon d'Automne. Tao lu s transmission into France accompanied contemporaneous shipments of such raw materials as clay and stone sent by Chinese Catholic priests to Se vres by way of Canton. It is evident, however, that instruction in the Western method of representation predominated, and that the emphasis on technical drawing or drafting reflected the importance attached to the practical applications of the Western method.
