Iran

A half million lives were lost, and perhaps another million were injured. As agreed with the parties, during that period UNIIMOG was mandated to resolve the remaining problems on the border, to try to arrange an exchange of information between the parties about unmarked minefields, and to help in the negotiation and implementation of an area of separation and, subsequently, an area of limitation of armaments.

Iraq War

US soldiers fired tears gas at the militants, who advanced no further.

Death Tolls of the Iran

Kennedy himself wavered between pinpoint airstrikes and a carpet bombing campaign to neutralize the threat.

Iran

These tensions further increased with an alleged border incursion on 23 August by Iranian troops who attacked several Kurdish villages killing an unknown number of civilians and militants.
