Following the September 1945 Saigon uprising against the restoration of , Vietnamese Trotskyists were systematically hunted down and eliminated by both the French and the Communist-front. We may assume that those who are in earnest about the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment—on the principles laid down by the Russian Revolution—of the dictatorship of the proletariat in the now capitalist countries, including the United States, agree to the following fundamental propositions: a That a Bolshevik Communist Party is the first prerequisite for a successful revolution; b That there can be only one Bolshevik Party and not many in every country, and that the unity of such a party, its cohesion and therefore its striking power are of surpassing importance; c That the backbone of the socialist revolution is the urban proletariat; d That the Communist Party can accomplish the proletarian revolution only when it leads the entire working class, or at least a majority of it, in an armed uprising against the capitalist State; e That the success of the revolution depends to a large extent upon the ability of the Party and the proletariat to ally themselves with great masses of the other exploited and oppressed groups and classes of the population, in the first place the exploited farmers, the lower middle class of the cities, the oppressed intellectuals, etc. Lenin refused to accept the results of the 1917 elections to the Constituent Assembly because the Bolsheviks polled a minority of the votes.

Trotsky, Strauss, and the Neocons, by Justin Raimondo

Yet the marginality and fragmentation of the Trotskyist movement do not of themselves constitute grounds for dismissing the ideas which it embodies and has sought, in various ways, to develop. The leftward shift in the French national Assembly in Thâu's view had not brought meaningful change. The denial of the possibility of building Socialism in the U.

Trotskyism: Counter

Stalin initially sought compromise in 1917 and then switched to Trotsky's line. Thus, an interest in Trotskyism is not just for those of us who are revolutionaries in the tradition of Trotsky. Trotsky belonged to the third generation of the classical Marxists.

There was little intimacy with developments to the north where, in Hanoi on September 2, 1945, Ho Chi Minh and his new Front for the Independence of Vietnam, the , proclaimed the Democratic Republic of Vietnam. . Not that the Vietnamese were engaged in overt warfare, I don't think, toward the establishment of communist internationalism.

Western Trotskyism

His way of approaching reality was deeply holistic, flexible, dialectical and intransigent in pursuing the revolutionary objectives of the working class. AK Press, Oakland CA, 2010, p.

He advocated the Big Lie. Condoleezza Rice and Colin Powell don't look Jewish to me, but they also helped draft the basic statement of the Bush Doctrine, the September 2002 'National Security Policy of the United States. It really only works for Nixon and Reagan, falling apart when an Establishment Republican like Bush the first comes into office and alienates the former Dixiecrats.

This change is undeniable, and is not confined to the USA. Sometimes 'appeasement' is anything but.

Why Trotskyism?

What follows is very far from being a history of the Trotskyist movement — the nature of the series in which this book appears as well as the limitations of my own knowledge dictate this though I have benefited from the recent explosion of historical research into Trotskyism reflected in the emergence of journals such as Cahiers Leon Trotsky and Revolutionary History. He switched to Trotsky's policies of seeking anti fascist alliances after the disastrous rise of the Nazis. Ho Huu Thuong's vision was of a revolutionary general strike coordinated with the French proletariat.
