The computer core of Ha'taks were advanced computers that were located deep inside a mothership where it controlled vital components of the vessel such as the self-destruct and other ship based systems. On his return, the principal must give a receipt for what was handed over to him.

A source book of ships. written and compiled by laurence dunn.

A curious extension of the talio is the death of creditor's son for his father's having caused the death of debtor's son as mancipium; of builder's son for his father's causing the death of house-owner's son by building the house badly; the death of a man's daughter because her father caused the death of another man's daughter. If the wife of one man on account of another man has their mates her husband and the other man's wife murdered, both of them shall be impaled. The Code did not merely embody contemporary custom or conserve ancient law.
