Guns, Germs, and Steel by Jared Diamond Plot Summary

It's different from standing there in a hospital and seeing kids who were then the age that my kids had been and having flashbacks to one of my own kids in a hospital. Africans made their homes in high, dry areas when they could, away from the natural habitat of the mosquito. Hence IQ-based explanations should not focus on modern Europeans and Japanese, but instead on descendants of Fertile Crescent inhabitants of 3400 BC, such as modern Iraqis and Syrians.

Guns Germs & Steel: Variables. Malaria

This term is invoked by some scholars in many contexts, in order to deny arguments that geographic factors contribute importantly to explanations of some human phenomena and dominate explanations of other human phenomena. Update your browser to continue using indigo.

Guns Germs & Steel: Variables. Malaria

My listeners and readers find this pattern as fascinating as did I: after I give a lecture on Guns, Germs, and Steel, I can often recognize those people nearby who have just come out of my lecture, because they are tracing horizontal and vertical lines in the air as they talk to each other. The greatest weapon the explorers brought with them was germs, which decimated indigenous populations. Unfortunately his story-telling abilities are so compelling that he has seduced a generation of college-educated readers.
