They could not attribute any change in patronage to the introduction of the central zone charge.

Demography of London

If only Defoe could see it now. In December 2017, TfL said that the charge had cut the number of these heavily polluting vehicles by around 1,000 per day, with the remaining 2,000 paying the £10 charge a further 3,000 vehicles are eligible for discounts due to Blue Badges etc.

The press operated against a backdrop of continued government censorship, which continued through the Interregnum and the reign of Charles II. Utilities were encouraged to complete planned road works in the year preceding the congestion charge, so it would appear that the first year of measurement used for later comparisons would also have been affected by streetworks to some extent. The Regeneration of Stratford After London 2012

Red dots show reductions and blue dots increases. As of December 2013, Transport for London estimated that £82 million was owed by foreign embassies in London.

The Regeneration of Stratford After London 2012

In 1963 a new division of London was made, comprising the old town and 32 metropolitan boroughs, and these are the divisions which can be seen today. Retrieved on 3 March 2015.

Demography of London

Consultation on these proposals began in August 2007 and ended on 19 October 2007. Getting the builders in Vissler's view of the Thames in 1616 Helped by a population explosion across the country, London ballooned in size: by 1603 its population had expanded to 215,000 people. Once a predominantly agricultural area, Stratford experienced a period of economic overturn in the late 18th to early 19th centuries, becoming a site of industry when the polluting chemical plants and printers that had been banned in the city centre relocated there.

List of Greater London boundary changes

The consultation process ran from January 2014 to March 2014. Changes to the road network over the years has made direct comparisons difficult, but TfL suspect that certain routes used heavily by taxis and buses within the zone have seen substantially increased traffic. The 2007 TfL report makes it clear that only a one-off reduction of emissions could be expected from the introduction of the charge, whilst further reductions are unlikely to be as a result of the charge.
