Some Rules for the Conduct of Life to which are added a Few Cautions for the Use of Such Freemen of London as Take Apprentices by Anon

It often appears in a family, as if all the qualities of the progenitors were potted in several jars, — some ruling quality in each son or daughter of the house, — and sonjetimes the unmixed temperament, the rank unmiti- gated elixir, the family vice, is drawn off in a separate individual, and the others are proportionally relieved. In July, the blue pontederia or pickereel-weed blooms in large beds in the shallow parts of our pleasant river, and swarms with yellow butterflies in continual motion. By the aggregate of these aids, how is the face of the world changed, from the era of Noah to that of Napoleon! The useful arts are reproductions or new combinations by the wit of man, of the same natural benefactors.
