Revolutionary nationalism is a force that sees capital and the ruling order in a fundamentally different way; rather than grouse over what piece of the power structure can be reformed or what privileges can be maintained, the revolutionary nationalist sees the challenge is in upending the dynamics as a whole.

From Toussaint to Tupac: The Black International since the Age of Revolution

West, Binghamton University Fanon Che Wilkins, Doshisha University, Kyoto, Japan Recommended Citation Vinson, R. From Toussaint to Tupac wanders into shakier territory when it comes to the spin on hip-hop. From Toussaint to Tupac focuses on three moments in global black history: the American and Haitian revolutions, the Garvey movement and the Communist International following World War I, and the Black Power movement of the late twentieth century.

From Toussaint to Tupac: The Black International since the Age of Revolution

Rather, black internationalism is a product of consciousness, that is, the conscious interconnection and interlocution of black struggles across man-made and natural boundaries—including the boundaries of nations, empires, continents, oceans, and seas.
