I Dreamed of Africa (2000)

A Haunting love story, of not only the men in her life, but for the wild nature and beauty of Kenya.

I Dreamed of Africa

I just couldn't stop reading it.

Even though this is a remarkable story, touching, tragic and moving, I cannot help feeling a bit annoyed. She meets her first husband, and the father of her first son at the university. Other performances are equally off the mark. Perez struggles valiantly to bring some 'spark' to his Paolo character, but ultimately comes across as little more than a self-centered madman for whom sympathy is difficult at best.

Either way, it does not make them interesting or fun to watch. Her books are a personal account of their happiness and sorrows in a tough environment and also confirm why Africa is born in everyone who lived there.

I Dreamed of Africa (2000)

Kuki is devastated by the news. How something this shoddy made it through every step of development without anyone realizing what a stinky product they had is beyond me. I really liked the way how she let us see into her life and the way how she describe her love for Africa.

I Dreamed of Africa (2000)

I Dreamed of Africa is a meandering, un-focused, fragmented story holding vast potential. A great deal of the chaos revolves around Basinger's character. It made me think long, and hard, about my death, the death of the ones I love.
