Creationism (Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy)

By that time also, the geologically competent, young-earth, scriptural geologists were nearly dead or had given up the fight and had no means of reproducing themselves because the university geology departments, geological journals, and geological societies were totally controlled by the old-earth uniformitarian paradigm. The Surprising Modern Rise of Neo-Catastrophism. Uniformitarian naturalism dominated geology from about 1840 to the 1970s, and through Darwin it subsequently took control of all the sciences. The uniformitarians had won the day by about 1840.

? Their selective out-of-date reading distorts the truth. The Genesis Flood: The Biblical Record and its Scientific Implications, Philadelphia: Presbyterian and Reformed Publishing Company. Nas versões tradicionais do teísmo evolutivo, a interação de Deus com a natureza era interpretada segundo categorias causais quando as dependências determinísticas eram sublinhadas no processo do desenvolvimento evolutivo.

Genesis Twentieth Century Philosophy Evolution Thought by Harry Prosch

Huxley and Charles Darwin themselves were by no means antagonistic to the Christian faith; it was the unwillingness of Christians to face new truth which forced men of this caliber further away from the faith than they themselves would have chosen to go. .
