Action Research in English Language Teaching: Contributions and Recent

Developments

Action points ask readers to carry out action-research tasks based on what they have read. Anne Burns, a well-respected action researcher specializing in foreign language teaching, has been helping teachers from around the globe in their journey to improve their professional practice.

Doing Action Research in English Language Teaching: A Guide for Practitioners

Over the last two decades, action research has become increasingly popular in foreign and second language teaching classes. Each chapter includes a variety of pedagogical activities: Pre-Reading questions ask readers to consider what they already know about the topic. It can be considered as a form of professional learning for language teachers which takes a socioconstructivist approach in which teachers are seen as agentic actors within their own social contexts.

Doing Action Research in English Language Teaching. A Guide for Practitioners

Specifically, the text addresses: Action research and how it differs from other forms of research. Summary Points provide a synopsis of the main points in the chapter.
