The idea of one Spirit, we are together.

The Resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ, A.J. Pollock (#832)

That same power is the power that Paul refers to in the bit we have not looked at in 3:7, where Paul specifically refers to this power that has been given to him in terms of his own ministry, the grace has been given to him for ministry. The means of course whereby this was achieved, Paul sets out here, was through the Cross of Christ. Unseen by mortal eye, He rose in wondrous power, raised by the glory of the Father, deliberately leaving the linen clothes with which He was swathed, and putting the head napkin in a place by itself, all bespeaking nothing hurried, but of His being completely Master of the situation.

...Doom and resurrection, : with an introduction by John A. Mackay

The source of the gifts is God. It is through Paul alone that we know of the Lord being seen by about five hundred brethren at once.

The Resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ, A.J. Pollock (#832)

How would you like to be stripped to the waist, and feel the dull thud of the whip cutting into your flesh again and again, whilst the blood flowed freely from a dozen gaping wounds.

Doom and Resurrection. With an Introduction by John Mackay.

Peter, after his frightful backsliding, might well have wondered if he were included in the message.

...Doom and resurrection, : with an introduction by John A. Mackay

So the model is not only the words and the attitudes and the deeds of Jesus but also in terms of the heart principle of Jesus which is supremely demonstrated on the Cross. Paul says don't be deceived because God's wrath and God's judgment is upon such activity. The lot fell on Jonah.

Faithlife

Matthew does not mention our Lord appearing to the eleven disciples, whilst Mark, Luke and John do, this last alone telling of the Lord appearing a second time to the eleven, especially mentioning Thomas, surnamed Didymus.

The Resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ, A.J. Pollock (#832)

Sometimes, I must admit, it doesn't work too well on the Cook Strait but nonetheless that is what they are there for, to help give stability and assurance and strength. How does He dwell within us? What we looked at in the second half of Chapter 2 last Sunday morning about that Christian experience of reconciliation; not only as reconciliation between ourselves and God but between ourselves and others and so in referring to the breaking down of the middle wall of partition, the barrier, the middle wall of hostility, of alienation, of suspicion, of prejudice, whatever word we want to use. It dare not be undervalued, taken for granted, or dismissed.
