Foreign Policy: Asia Pacific

With more resources than any other country in the world, the U. Russia has achieved a measure of success in asserting itself in Central Asia through its latest economic and geopolitical construct—the Eurasian Economic Union EEU. As a region, ASEAN has a 55.

Biden Puts Japan at the Center of U.S. Policy in Asia

These new facts on the ground will exert a major influence on how the United States advances its modest interests in the region with the limited means and resources it has at its disposal.

How Will U.S. Policy toward Central Asia Look under the Biden Administration?

Ensuring that the region remains strong, independent, and outward-looking is therefore in the best interests of both the United States and the nations of Southeast Asia. Nevertheless, if the United States were absolutely secure, other countries would then be absolutely insecure, totally subject to threats or coercion of the U.

Asia

At the same time, Washington has been pursuing both national missile defense NMD and theater missile defense TMD systems, aimed at protecting itself from other countries. Energy and Economic Cooperation The United States continues to have an interest in constructing a regional energy market for Central Asia that is linked to Afghanistan, South Asia, Europe, and East Asia. While both sides will continue to pursue their own security interests in Asia, each country also has to adapt itself to the changing political, economic and security landscape in this region.

Others in ASEAN do not fare as well, but all of them rank higher than China, except for Vietnam, Laos, and Burma. For the most part, Central Asia will remain an area of general interest for U. It joined Japan and Australia to form the Trilateral Partnership for Infrastructure Investment in the Indo-Pacific to promote sustainable infrastructure based on high governance standards.

How Will U.S. Policy toward Central Asia Look under the Biden Administration?

Indonesia has faced major attacks including the Bali bombings of October 2002 and 2005, the 2003 bombing of the Jakarta Marriott Hotel, and the 2004 bombing of the Australian embassy. And yet, numerous critical factors—bearing on issues of stability, strategic significance, and geopolitical shifts—amplify the importance of placing South Asia on the crowded front burner of U. Beyond meeting as a group, the ASEAN ministers hold consultations with many of their trading partners.
