Ramon de Vilana Perlas

And then I saw new things which I could not know or tell in this world. And being there, doubting where those were who had put us in and should come from the monastery to seek us, we were at the gate and as soon as they had opened it they saw us coming out from there.

And they led me with them inside the gate and sang most sweetly a sort of song which I had never in my life heard. And the great lords wear a coat with no lining down to their knees, cut very low at the neckline like women, and they wear great hoods which go down to their waist, the point being as narrow as one's finger and they wear neither leggings nor shoes nor britches but wear their spurs on their bare heels.

AP Valletta / Casa Perellos

Her parents are Bernat Perello as the father and Maria Pascual as her mother. The property suffered damage during the Second World War, and subsequently, severe neglect and abandon. And then I wondered much and one of the devils said to me: You are wondering why these people are so afraid, what it is they are awaiting; but if you do not turn back you will find it out very soon.

And those hanging on that wheel lamented most miserably and then the devils seized me and threw me onto the wheel whirling round I called on the name of Jesus Christ and at once I was out of the wheel and was free of that danger and torment.

Biografia de Ramón de Perellós

Built in the early 18th Century, Casa Perellos was the intimate, yet stately country residence of the Grand Master Ramon Perellos y Roccafull 1697—1720. And the devils always torment them and make so loud a clamor that none could be greater; every one of them wished to torment me but I called on the name of God, on account of which they could not harm me. And I saw before me a great wall, very high and of wondrous and most strange fashion, in which there was a gate all of which shone, adorned more than gold and surrounded with precious stones; and when I was close to it, at two miles distance or more, it opened and from inside there came out a great odor as if in all the world they were toasting or roasting spices or as if it were full of other sweet smelling things.
