Schools for the Deaf

AHEAD is an independent voluntary organisation working to promote improved access for persons with disabilities to Third Level Education in Ireland, North and South. While these have not yet been achieved there were several other significant developments during the 1990s. So, those who work with deaf students are adapting to the new normal.

Educational Options

It is a day school that serves deaf children of all ages, ranging from newborns to early teens. No strategic or participative roles were available for disabled people in this debate, nor in the arenas where policies were made and decisions taken.

The development of a cultural model of deafness shared many of the features of the social model of disability. According to Pollard The Avenue, p.

The Irish nun who opened schools for the deaf in Australia

It has provided a conceptual foundation for an analysis of the social production of disability in the modern world and has supplied a framework for understanding and explaining processes of discrimination experienced by disabled people. It offers a tuition-free day and residential high school program for students who are affected by deafness and hearing impairment.

Education of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing

More fortunate was it for the poor, neglected Deaf of the Cape that the first Mother Prioress of these good sisters was Mother Dymphna Kinsella, who had worked for years in Cabra for the Deaf and was deeply interested in them.
