

Marys story - a Christmas play

Mowbray - Christmas

NARRATIVE AND SPOKEN LINKS
Introduction (Spoken in fairy-godmother 'jester' style)
NARRATOR(S)	The time has now come, for the music begins! It's the night before Christmas at 'Bethlehem Inn'.
	The landlord is glad that his work has been done, But little he knows of the story to come...
In pajamas and nightcap, getting ready for bed (brushes teeth, winds up clock, etc.)
INNKEEPER	(Sings) What a busy day it's been! I'm so tired, I can't wait to get some sleep. (Goes into bed, blows out 'candle'. Sings).
Song 1. KNOCK! KNOCK!
INNKEEPER	This is all too much! Don't people know what time it is? I'm off back to bed!
Song 2. TONIGHT
(As angels exit and guests begin to socialise, filling main stage)
NARRATOR(S)	Our landlord was hoping that he'd get a rest, He hadn't expected this number of guests.
	The laughter, the chatter, the stamping of feet, Prevented our landlord from getting to sleep.
Song 3. INNKEEPER'S SONG
INNKEEPER	(To guests) Please, be reasonable. It's very late. Now, go to your rooms. (Brushes them off stage. Starts off to bed, muttering to himself. Hears a knock at the door, and screams!).
Song 4. KNOCK! KNOCK! (MARY & JOSEPH)
As innkeeper turns to walk away
JOSEPH	Please sir, can't you help us? We've come so far. We don't mind where we sleep. (Innkeeper stops, turns round and reconsiders).
INNKEEPER	Well, I suppose I could squeeze you into the stable. It's a bit smelly,

No Innkeeper, No Donkey

I hope that you will be too. Given that the miracle of the incarnation was taking place and defining the future of human history, it's probably safe to assume some sort of angelic presence — but possibly not one that was visible to Mary and Joseph. What follows is a re-telling of my experience with some extra tidbits thrown in that, while historically accurate, may be new to you.

Mary's Story, A Mother's Point Of View

In addition, the members of your Youth Group will be kept on their toes with innovative new stage directions.

Seeing Christmas through Mary's Eyes

Author: David Wagner Dur: 7min D 2F A hard day's shopping leaves Tracey with a question at the end. Then they opened their treasure chests and gave him gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh. My heart was celebrating even before the family celebrated! Every week, thousands of churches use our Bible lessons, craft ideas, printable resources, and coloring pages to teach kids the Christian faith.
