Folklore & Legend

We humans are composed of over 90 per cent water.

Lurgan

Take the great site of Christian pilgrimage, Lough Derg, it was a place of sanctuary long before Christianity and is still today a place where boundaries meet. According to legend the lord of the underworld is supposed to exist beNeagh its waters.

Lough Neagh Pollan, first PDO for Northern Ireland

This is a voluntary service funded by the district councils bordering the Lough. There have long been plans to increase the amount of water evaporated from the Lough, through a new treatment plant at the point of Hog Park, but they have not materialized. This last named river, during its short course of five miles, supplies numerous bleachworks, and corn, flour, and flax mills: its falls are so rapid that the tail race of the higher mill forms the head water of the next lower.

Lough Neagh (County Antrim)

Such stones are often found at early ecclesiastical sites.

Lough Beg

Castledawson and Manorhamilton are examples. He is literally the god of the two streams, the confluence, and was worshipped as such. Cattle Grazing in the Lough Beg National Nature Reserve Lough Beg from Loch Beag 'little lake' is a small freshwater lake north of in.
