The school was located at Hill Street before being replaced by Kirkcaldy Grammar School on St Brycedale Avenue in 1843. As in earlier centuries, most women worked in agriculture, but here roles became more clearly gendered, with and managing the fields defined as men's work, for example, and becoming dominated by women. By the end of the 12th century, and possibly as early as the 1150, contemporary commentators believed the two peoples to be blending, and the loss of the Duchy in 1204 reinforced this trend.
