He is the author of ten books, including Better Living: In Pursuit of Happiness from Plato to Prozac and Nearest Thing to Heaven: The Empire State Building and American Dreams. Whereas Benjamin wanted to reconcile Marx with magic, Kingwell traces the whole shattered root-skein of Western thought, the Gordian knot of ancient geometry and Platonic ideal form, ancestral rituals of drama and comedy, and the warp and woof of text. He has delivered, among others, the George Grant, Harold Innis, Marx Wartofsky and Larkin-Stuart memorial lectures.
