THE DETAILED 134 TEACHING ORACLES AND MESSAGES OF THE LORD: (PART A)

In those days, having journeyed a bit in the Italian peninsula, I no longer had firm opinions on the subject: I had heard of the monks of Altopascio, who, when they preached, threatened excommunications and promised indulgences, absolved those who committed robberies and fratricides, homicides and perjury, for money; they let it be believed that in their hospital every day up to a hundred Masses were said, for which they collected donations, and they said that with their income they supplied 112 Umberto Eco THE NAME OF THE ROSE dowries for two hundred poor maidens.
