Risk assessment instruments in child protection

As a result, clinicians are more culturally empathic and more able to empower the families with whom they work. The training materials are self-administered, can be done individually or in groups, and require several hours to complete. At the very least, a second source of information should be obtained.

Risk and Protective Factors

The NCFAS is an assessment tool designed to examine family functioning in the domains of Environment, Parental Capabilities, Family Interactions, Family Safety, and Child Well-being. The SDM Child Strengths and Needs Assessment is very similar in structure to the SDM Family Strengths and Needs Assessment. University of WA Risk Assessment Protocol UWRAP Citations: Reynolds, S.

Family Assessment

Self-report ratings using the SAS-SR are used to corroborate interview ratings. Rules change in our family.

Trauma Informed Care Assessments and Screeners

It is intended for use with all family types from newly-wed to retired couples, and is administered to all family members. When assessing risk, it is important to match the assessment impact to the decision framework.

Parenting and family adjustment scales (PAFAS): validation of a brief parent

As the name of the instrument suggests, it is designed to go beyond simply predicting the immediate danger to the child and the likelihood of the child experiencing maltreatment in the future by also assessing family wellbeing and psychosocial development. All of the above risk and protective factors are things that occur on an individual level. San Francisco, CA: Jossey Bass.
