It makes up about 3% of all buildings and 41% of concrete buildings in the study area. Civil-Comp 93, Edited by B.

SOM Bibliography

It should be referred that when working at towns with a particular important old stock of buildings, the existing published Building Census does not cover well this portion of data because all buildings constructed before 1919 are all in the same class. The moment magnitude is currently the preferred scale for the size of the earthquake.
