Indeed, its very insignificance becomes disturbing, a geographic footnote to the banality of evil. These are the chief and fundamental privileges, but the right honorable lords proprietors have promised and it is their interest so to do to be ready to grant what other privileges may be found advantageous to the good of the colony. After Halifax became the seat of Government for a short time judicature was carried on there by the Governor in Council, sitting as the General Court, and by a County Court framed upon the lines of the tribunal of that name then existing in Virginia.
