Splendeurs et misères des courtisanes :: Phoebus

The plan is the following: Vautrin and Lucien are 60,000 francs in debt because of the lifestyle that Lucien has had to maintain. They also need one million francs to buy the old Rubempré land back, so that Lucien can marry Clotilde, the rich but ugly daughter of the Grandlieus.

Furthermore, I noticed that the prostitutes were all very plump, with round bellies and heavy breasts often spilling out from their dresses. Her father prevents the marriage after finding out that the money, which actually came from Esther, did not really come from an inheritance from Lucien's father, as Lucien was saying. XI, Études de mœurs, Scènes de la vie parisienne, p.

Splendeurs et misères. Images de la prostitution, 1850

Commits suicide after sleeping with Nucingen for money. La cour et la ville seraient ainsi conçues comme deux milieux antagonistes, aux règles, aux codes et au personnel différents.

He tells his interrogator everything, including Vautrin's true identity. Try to get Vautrin for various personal reasons. XVII, Études de mœurs, Scènes de la vie parisienne, p.

Splendeurs et misères des courtisanes

Instead of forcing Lucien to abandon her, he allows Lucien this secret affair, but also makes good use of it. Furne Splendeurs et misères des courtisanes, Première partie : Esther heureuse, dans La Comédie humaine, Paris, Furne, 1844, t.

Splendeurs et misères des courtisanes :: Phoebus

Things don't work out as smoothly as Vautrin would have liked, however, because Esther commits suicide after giving herself to Nucingen for the first and only time after making him wait for months. Although Vautrin actually manages to fool his interrogators into believing that he might be Carlos Herrera, a priest on a secret mission for the Spanish king, Lucien succumbs to the wiles of his interviewer.
