Policy & Legislation affecting child abuse and neglect

The Clearinghouse will identify promising, supported, and well-supported practices for mental health and substance abuse prevention and treatment programs, in-home parent skill-based programs, and kinship navigator programs appropriate for children who are candidates for foster care pregnant or parenting foster youth, and the parents or kin caregivers of those children and youth. The final rule requires title IV-E agencies to collect and report data to ACF on children in out-of-home care, who exit out-of-home care to adoption or legal guardianship, information related to the Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978, and children who have a title IV-E adoption or guardianship assistance agreement.

Suspected Child Abuse

In-Home Services Children are best served when they can safely remain in their homes with their families intact. The goal in preventing child abuse and neglect is to stop this violence from happening in the first place.

Child Protection Policies & Procedures

Information regarding other federal and state laws that influence public child welfare services may be found in the related sections of the DCS Child Welfare Policy Manual. Even if there are some worries, DSS can work with families to keep children safe in their homes.
