

Other mothers - race and representation in natural childbirth discourse.

National Library of Canada - Becoming Midwives: That pesky meta

Description: -

-Other mothers - race and representation in natural childbirth discourse.

-

Canadian theses = -- Thèses canadiennesOther mothers - race and representation in natural childbirth discourse.

Notes: Thesis (M.A.) -- University of Toronto, 1994.

This edition was published in 1994

Filesize: 36.12 MB

Tags: #Medicalization, #Natural #Childbirth #and #Birthing #Experiences

Mothers: Race and Representation in Natural Childbirth Discourse. on Apple Books

Ultimately our findings challenge the thinking that motherhood inherently competes with work and reinforce efforts to restructure gendered organizations, institutions, policies, and families to facilitate better work-life integration. These descriptive statistics indicate that average importance of motherhood is significantly higher for mothers than non-mothers. We reserved the partner data for a future study.

Becoming Midwives: That pesky meta

Understanding pregnancy in a population of inner-city women in New Orleans: Results of qualitative research.

Reconstruction in Post

Fertility, family planning, and women's health. Kennedy HP, Nardini K, McLeod-Waldo R, Ennis L.

RaceSci: History of Race in Science: Bibliographies: Public Health

We also expect that women who have more egalitarian gender expectations will place less importance on motherhood because more egalitarian women are more accepting of childlessness. Black feminist thought: Knowledge, consciousness and empowerment.

Becoming Midwives: Free Resources for Midwifery Study

In brief, Consequently many assertions put forward in the academic literature about media influence on perceptions of childbirth are unproven since few studies have measured the impact that such representations have on women and health professionals. .

sheryl nestel'

Finally, we control for perception of a fertility problem, general health, the presence of a chronic health problem, and economic hardship to account for barriers to fertility.

Psychoprophylaxis

Because children are normatively associated with heterosexual marriage, married women should attribute more importance to motherhood than single or cohabiting women.

Related Books

- Textbook on chiropractic orthopedy
- Figuring out performance - a guide to assessing performance and quality in nursing and midwifery tra
- Farm shop
- 4000 naibolee upotrebitelnykh slov russkogo yazyka
- Alla ha rätt - samt andra uppsatser med anledning av världskriget