Thoughts from Botswana by Lauri Kubuitsile: January 2009

Dealing with migration is not simply a question of keeping undesirables at bay.

History of the Anti Apartheid Movement and their work with Front Line States

On the surface, it is quiet, but below there is a volcano. If one takes the finance minister of Ethiopia mentioned in Acts 8 as the absolute first indigenous evangelist, we can now say that Magdalena was definitely the first one of Sub Saharan Africa. As a result, the creator of the product need not be the owner or distributor of that product.

Simultaneously, the witness of the church in South Africa with regard to secretive societies was effectively blunted through this link. Indeed, the more the ANC becomes a normal political party, the hollower sounds the standard answer—that the Communists are only loyal members of a liberation movement from which they take orders. As has been noted, few, if any, British or American reporters or photographers were present when the language protest erupted into violence.
