Library 101: A Handbook for the School Library Media Specialist by Stephens, Claire Gatrell, Franklin, Patricia: Good (2007)

Designed to be read both cover-to-cover and utilized as a ready reference, the second edition of Where Do I Start? With the extreme budget cuts most school libraries are facing, professional development resources for library support staff that improve library management efficiency are in great demand. Less than two weeks to the beginning of school! Previously, I spent four years in a high school library. Today it remains an essential component of my professional bookshelf.

Articles are divided into four subcategories covering day-to-day operations library organization, circulation policies, media management, scheduling, staffing, and media center arrangement ; collaboration with teachers; A collection development and management; and equipment. Comprehensive and thorough, it was one of my coursebooks while pursuing my degree in Library and Information Science.

This is a very beginning-level introduction that would be of use to those who do not have the opportunity to intern in a school library or to discuss library media center basics with other librarians in their communities or school districts. This handbook is the perfect introduction to school library management for both novice and seasoned professionals.
