According to that concept of cause, to say that one event causes another is to say that there is a necessary connection between the first event the cause and the second event the effect , such that, when the first event happens, the second event must also happen.

Definition and Examples of Dialectic in Rhetoric

This perspective is often useful in the context of where the duality between and can be interpreted as a dialectic in this sense.

Definition and Examples of Dialectic in Rhetoric

However, the formula, abstract-negative-concrete, suggests a flaw, or perhaps an incompleteness, in any initial thesis—it is too abstract and lacks the negative of trial, error, and experience. The geocentric theory that the sun revolves around the Earth and the heliocentric theory that the Earth revolves around the sun, for instance, Inoue suggests, are both correct from certain points of view.
