The Guillebaud Report

One suggestion put forward in oral evidence to the Committee was that the Exchequer might pay to the local authority a unit grant in respect of each hospital bed maintained by the authority, covering a substantial proportion of the total running costs—say 80 per cent.

Companies Act 2008

A great deal still remains to, be done by the local authorities in the development of their home health and welfare services, and it seems to us that their energies might be expended more profitably in this direction than in attempting to take on the whole of hospital administration in addition. Henry Idell to be eighth ; and Mr. The consultation should be confidential and informal and should not be a matter of constitutional obligation.
