Whoever combines these two forms of struggle receives his reward without any account.

Abu Nuwas

In a poignant, mournful poem, Abu Nuwas declared: I am struggling against my eyes, my heart and my penis; Would that for these eyes I had others and another heart in place of my own, and instead of my penis that of an old man who can remember the days of ‘Ad.

Abū Nuwās

As is clear from its last hemistich only in B! Alchindus, Abu Yusuf Ya'qub ibn Ishaq al-Kindi. He did not think of sitting down until the prayer was much longer than he was used to. Abī Bakr al-Azdī , Arab poet of Muslim Sicily.
