Fortifications of Alderney

. From an old map, we discovered that there had once been a large water tank here, too, built by the Germans for no apparent reason.

WWII Haul discovered in the Islands of Guernsey Ahead of 75th Anniversary of Liberation

One report stated: 'Too undernourished and exhausted to work efficiently, these men were mercilessly beaten by the German guard and frequently when they were too weak after a beating to stand up, they were clubbed to death or finished off with a knife. Yes, the title of the film is not an exaggeration — potato peel pie really was a dish that people were eating at the time.

The History of Liberation Day in Guernsey

Yeah the only time the US gov and business interests owned and controlled by the 6 million eternal victims is during the Weimar period. This was the case for both sides — the Germans could be in trouble for forming relationships with the local women too.

The Homecoming

After liberation British forces dumped a vast amount of military hardware into a quarry which was then flooded.

Recollections of WWII: Alderney At War

The Controlling Committee introduced Occupation money to the islands, with German occupying forces using Third Reich scrip.
