Many of Microsoft's developers were also re-tasked to build updates to Windows XP and to strengthen security. Watch, pause and record your favorite TV or premium high-definition HD cable television content, find the program you want using the built-in television guide, listen to your favorite music and share your photos with family and friends in a slideshow set to the soundtrack of your choice--all on your PC or a TV screen. After several months of relatively little news or activity from Microsoft with Longhorn, Microsoft released Build 4008, which had made an appearance on the Internet around February 28, 2003.
