Research Interests: narrative theory as it is related to nation-building and diasporic belonging; the depiction of trauma and its impact on narrative form. With sites of discussion ranging from a democratic Spain to a Puerto Rican barrio in North Philadelphia, from Burundian Hutu refugees in Tanzania to Asian landscapes in rural California, from the silk factories of Hangzhou to the long-sought-after home of the Palestinians, these essays examine the interplay between changing schemes of categorization and the discourses of difference on which these concepts are based.

Periods of American Literature

American poetry and fiction were largely modeled on what was being published overseas in Great Britain, and much of what American readers consumed also came from Great Britain. The was grounded in the tenets of black nationalism and sought to generate a uniquely black consciousness. Ritashona Simpson is author of Black Looks and Black Acts: The Language of Toni Morrison in The Bluest Eye and Beloved 2007.
