Marshall Foundation celebrates Marshall Plan Day

The Golden Age of Capitalism spanned from the end of the Second World War in 1945 to the early 1970s, when the Bretton Woods monetary system collapsed. In mid-June 1947, Britain and France invited European nations to send representatives to Paris in order to draw up a cooperative recovery plan. The negotiations were long and complex, with each nation having its own interests.

The day after tomorrow requires a modern Marshall Plan

Other CED members included top executives at General Foods, the Coca-Cola Company, Scott Paper, Quaker Oats, General Electric and Goldman Sachs, many of whom testified before Congress in support of assistance to Europe. To help garner business support, and thus to mitigate Republican opposition, Truman created the Committee on Foreign Aid, chaired by Averell Harriman, with heavy business membership, to study the Marshall Plan's impact on business. Officially known as the European Recovery Program ERP , the Marshall Plan was intended to rebuild the economies and spirits of western Europe, primarily.
