Lily Mars reminds me of Fanny Brice in a way. Given that it was willing to do anything in order to tell a good story, Presenting Lily Mars wildly unpredictable, and many people are warned to not get attached to a character when they first start watching the series. With this, his second MGM picture, Pasternak tasked himself with doing what he did for Durbin: helping a child songstress's star persona come of age.

Which Presenting Lily Mars character are you? But when Lily follows him to New York, he gets to know her better and his opinion of her changes for the better. Opinions on this one among other IMDb-ers seem, not surprisingly, rather mixed, since the clichés that form the basis for this script are not quite sufficiently redeemed by a generally excellent supporting cast, as well as very deluxe art and set decoration, including a stunning nightclub set.
