The Idea of Decadence in French Literature, 1830

In 1897, Klausner reviewed the development of the new Hebrew literature and reached the conclusion that following the Romantic era at the beginning of the nineteenth century, and subsequent to the Realist period which ran concurrently with European Realism from the 1840s to the 1880s, Hebrew literature in the last years of the century had begun to be influenced by Decadence and Symbolism. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1981.

Edgar Allan Poe Society of Baltimore

In Hebrew literature, the reaction of writers fluent in German and French was different from that of writers who experienced Decadence primarily through Russian imitations and translations, just as the reaction of someone who had studied in Berlin, Heidelberg, or Berne was different from that of someone from Odessa or Petersburg.
