IFLA

We are so fortunate to be celebrating this day with a very special book- written by one of my Storm sisters, Sammie Vance. Dog gets a big ego when he competes unfairly and therefore thinks he is the best at everything, until his friends teach him to compete fairly. Perfect Picture Book Friday: INSPIRE THE WORLD

In 2021 a working group is currently reviewing the excellent World-Through-Picture-Books Programme. He does talk about how different he is from David and how David is a brilliant pianist and has an amazing ability to communicate with animals.

Everyone is someone and everyone is important. My most reluctant readers begin new series of books, discuss books with their friends, drag books to recess, and beg me for extra time to read in class. From writing and her weekly podcast, to buddy benches and sending smiles, Sammie is spreading kindness wherever she goes.

Picture Book

This is a wonderful book to give to the siblings of children on the autistic spectrum, and would also be good to share in classroom stor A moving depiction of life with someone on the autistic spectrum. Lots of information and explanations of David's feelings and actions which could be explored with students. He thinks David could possibly be an alien from outer space because he doesn't like loud noises or tends to isolate himself from others.
