Annual Reports Prior to 1999 : Annual Report 1984

Soon after his election as Prime Minister of New Zealand, Mr. The performances in which the human or animal is the subject of degradation or in which there is fascination with the corporality of the body cannot be understood as the consequence of Western values, or, more simply, as an imported stylistic influence that therefore delegitimize its local significance and value. The industrialised countries were called upon to take a more constructive attitude towards the problems of the developing countries as well as the structural problems facing the world economy.
