A story from the sidewalk: From Rouge Park to Farmers' Row

Albert Kahn Design Most of these buildings, and several hundred more in the Ford empire, were designed by Albert Kahn, one the most renowned architects of his day. If you were to sell your farm and retire to village life, you might want to surround yourself with like-minded neighbors with whom you could share stories and a sense of community.

Rogue River Trail: Second death raises concerns about iconic pathway

That fact became clear in 1992 when the only car still built at the Rouge, the Ford Mustang, was about to be eliminated and assembly operations in Dearborn Assembly terminated. My recruitment is now officially back open! One can only imagine the Gramers feeling right at home with their neighbors as they swapped stories about farming along the Rouge, hard work and their love of the land.
