The Incredible Shrinking Eye

The Genuine Works of Hippocrates. Is the caustic which he employs superior to those in general use as a means of extirpating the local disease? Lying or self-deception is a part of everyday human interactions. It is a remarkable fact that, though for number, difficulty, and importance of study, the great family of venereal affections yields to none in the whole range of medicine, a system for clinically teaching them is a desideratum in every medical school in London, It is obvious that the propagation of the disease will be in inverse ratio to the means taken for its cure ; and, that as these are efficiently organized and carried out, mankind will be proportionately relieved from one of its most terrible scourges.
