Welcome to the 129th Rescue Wing

During peacetime, the combat-ready units and support units are assigned to most Air Force major commands to carry out missions compatible with training, mobilization readiness, humanitarian and contingency operations such as Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan. Some 45,000 Air Guardsmen, 80 percent of the force, were mobilized. All this was accomplished in a basically cooperative manner with the Air Force despite the inevitable strains produced by force structure downsizing and budget reductions of the active force while the Air Guard remained relatively stable in those categories.

The simulator was quickly adopted by the Air National Guard and then the Air Force. Yet this, the first war fought under the 1958 reorganization act, was conducted without a single Air Force agency controlling all air operations in Southeast Asia. The Associate Unit members were completely integrated into all aspects of the active duty , , and , as well as the 325th Operations Support Squadron.

History of the CONG

The following year, a dialogue between the ANG, the Air Staff, and the Navy began. The AAF also assisted Admiral Chester Nimitz's carriers in their island-hopping across the Central Pacific and supported Allied forces in Burma and China.
