Shipley, William 1921

At the beginning of the twentieth century, renowned storyteller Hanc'ibyjim Tom Young performed Maidu and Atsugewi stories for anthropologist Ronald B.

Shipley, William 1921

President of the Royal Society of Arts. To begin with, by taking on certain tasks, they underlined just how much the state left undone. Founded in 1754 as The Society for the Encouragement of Arts, Manufactures, and Commerce, it became The Royal Society of Arts in 1908.

William Shipley

He came up with ideas on how to provide inexpensive fuel for the poor, a floating light to save those lost in the sea for which he received an award, a way to establish new species of fish in ponds around England, and perhaps strangest of all, a method of lining your shoes with to keep them dry.

William Shipley

The society took an important part in the promotion of the great international exhibitions 1851 and 1862, the photographic society took its rise from an exhibition held under its auspices in 1852, and it has more recently developed an Indian section 1869, a foreign and colonial section 1874, and an applied-art section 1887.

These were not just frivolous concerns but matters of Britain's most important industry, namely, textiles. Remains particularly and surprisingly well-preserved; tight, bright, clean and sharp-cornered. Although Shipley had many students who went on to become famous artists, he himself was not remembered for his artwork.
